Project Summary

The Jail Visitation and Family Assistance Project provides services which primarily benefit low- to moderate-income clients and which mitigate the consequences of incarceration for all of the persons affected, directly or indirectly, by incarceration (parolees, released inmates, juvenile offenders and their families). These consequences include loss of family ties, financial hardships, emotional stressors and recidivism. Of special concern to Friends Outside are children, of whom it is estimated one in four will become criminal offenders unless they receive outside intervention. All services have been recommended by the criminal justice system and academic studies as contributing to a reduction of recidivism, the maintenance of family ties, and the reduction of intergenerational crime in this target group.
